

“Daphne’s Shade” (Felicity Sidnell Reid)

Summer shadows fell upon the path today a glorious rope of flowers and leaves skipping over the bricks with gentle feet all day long the sun has urged the trees to spread their gleaming greenery in shady spots the very light is green tinting skin and hair till credence prompts transfiguration—human into tree